Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement

Introduction

Modern Slavery is a crime and a violation of fundamental human rights. It takes various forms, such as slavery, servitude, forced and compulsory labour and human trafficking, all of which have in common the deprivation of a person's liberty by another to exploit the for personal or commercial gain.

Motor Bodies Weston has a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery and we are committed to acting ethically and with integrity in all our business dealings and relationships and to implementing and enforcing appropriate and effective systems and controls to ensure modern slavery is not taking place anywhere in our business or in our supply chains.

The Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the "Act") introduced changes in UK law focused on increasing transparency in supply chains. Specifically, large businesses are required to disclose the steps they have taken to ensure their business and supply chains are free from modern slavery.

The statement sets out the steps we have and are taking to ensure the modern slavery and human trafficking act are not talking place in any of our supply chains or businesses and is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Act. This statement applies to Motor Bodies Weston.

The activity of the business is car body shop repair Centre and all operations are based in the UK.

We have zero-tolerance to slavery and human trafficking. We continue to review our supply chain management process to ensure all those in our supply chain and contractors comply with our values and their legal obligations. This includes seeking confirmation from key suppliers of the business that they have implemented contractual arrangements which prohibit modern slavery and trafficking and seeking confirmation that they have adopted their own anti-slavery and human trafficking policies. We have also introduced changes to our standard terms and conditions of trading to require suppliers to comply with all applicable anti-slavery and human trafficking laws. Several of our key commercial supply arrangements already contain specific provisions regarding slavery and human trafficking and contractual arrangements will be updated, where necessary, upon renewal.

To ensure a high level of understanding of the risks of modern slavery and human trafficking in our supply chains and businesses, we will be providing appropriate training to our staff to raise awareness and highlight any areas of concern they may have.

We have not identified any instances or indications that either slavery or human trafficking occurs in our supply chain. As such, we have not considered it necessary to adopt any formal performance indicators to measure how effective we have been to ensure that slavery or human trafficking is not taking place in any part of our business(es) or supply chains. We intend to continue to keep this under review.

As set out, in the above, the business continues to take a variety of further steps to ensure that neither slavery or human trafficking occurs in either our business or in the supply chains.

This statement is made pursuant to section 54(1) of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 and constitutes our slavery and human trafficking statement for the financial year ending April 2020.
